Rumbly News

Happy Christmas everyone
 It's been another busy year here at The Rumbly. We've been thrilled to welcome so many returning guests this year and to met yet more new guests, all of whom we hope we will see again in the future.

GTBS Highly Commended !

As mentioned in our Spring 2012 we were nominated in the GTBS Gold Awards and as many know, whilst we did not win our category (the winners had acres of land & a solar array that tracks the sun) we were very chuffed to be Highly Commended. Fiona had a lovely day in Edinburgh meeting up with some old friends who won the Self Catering Gold Award.

The Rumbly Garden

Well it's not been the best growing weather ever this year, our soft fruit crop really suffered. However the brain wave of investing in small summer only poly-tunnel ensured the usual courgette crop and we've had a fab potato crop. Other veg did well too but Tomatoes will never be tried again—even if we are promised wall to wall sunshine & after mixed success we've decided that beans French & Runner will always be grown from seed in outdoor troughs. Another project this year was the raised deck at the rear from recycled bits.

Rumbly Strikes GOLD

We received a bit of a surprise this year. Apparently following our annual visit from Visit Scotland, the very nice Q&A chap nominated us for the Visit Scotland Gold Award for our efforts "to exceed customer expectations on an on-going basis whilst taking an innovation and proactive approach to customer care"

Loss of The Cat & a chicken

Some sad news on the animal front, in September at the grand age of 18 yrs we sadly lost Museli our Tortie cat. This followed loosing Marmalade late in 2011. We also lost Pepper one of our Silky Chickens due to a fractured leg that could not be "mended". We hope to replace her in Spring with a couple of different ones.

Simon's New Adventure

In October Simon started a new job as a Sustainable Tourism Assessor with the Green Tourism Business Scheme. This takes him all around the UK looking at a wide variety of different tourism businesses.

Trees for Life

The Rumbly now has a grove of trees with Trees for Life. It is their vision is to restore Scotland's ancient Caledonian Forest in area of 1,000 square miles to the west of Inverness and Loch Ness and we are proud to support their efforts. If you want to support us then you can add to the grove at <http://www.treesforlife.org.uk/groves/the-rumbly.php>
